BREAKS INTO STORE

The Hemenway grocery store No. 2 at Tenth and Weber streets, was entered last night about 11 o'clock by a burglar, but, so far as is known, nothing of value was taken. A G. Stair fourth night watchman in the north end, was passing the store and noticed that the light was on. He entered the place and found that someone had gained entrance by cutting the screen on the back door. He summoned the police and Mr. Hemenway. The safe was found intact and, after a search, it was thought that nothing was disturbed.

Middlemas wanted to fight it out with the bear. Failing to obtain permission, he started to fight the physician called to dress the stump of a finger the bear left. STIMSON RECOMMENDS A MILLION FOR PRESIDIO

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 4.—Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson recommended today to Congress an appropriation of $1,000,000 for the improvement of the Presidio and Fort Winfield Scott, Cal.

Secretary Stimson said he had recommended to Congress an appropriation of $1,000,000 for the improvement of the Presidio to provide accommodations for a larger garrison, which, it is the intention of the department to locate here. He said he favored the installation of a brigade here as a part of a general policy of the department to concentrate the army in eight or nine large divisions on the Pacific and Atlantic coasts and in the middle west, and to abolish many of the smaller posts, which have become of little use.

ONLY ONE LIFE LOST IN CALIFORNIA RESORT FIRE

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 4.—Only one life was lost last night when flames devastated the concession and business district of Ocean Park, 18 miles from this city.

Insurance adjusters estimate the loss at $1,200,000 on buildings and $1,000,000 on their contents. Two hundred twenty buildings were destroyed.

A. R. Proctor, founder of the resort, whose loss is estimated at more than a million dollars, carried $200,000 insurance.

Taft Greets Delegates From His Wheel Chair

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—The president of the United States greeted from a wheel chair the delegates to the eighth international congress of Applied Chemistry which was opened here this morning to be continued in New York beginning Friday.

The principal event of the day was a garden party on the White House grounds in honor of the delegates from foreign nations. There, President Taft, disabled on account of a sprained ankle and a slight attack of gout, welcomed his guests. Late in the afternoon the president spoke briefly to the delegates in the east room of the White House. Later he was wheeled to the lawn where he shook hands with the visitors smilingly acknowledging because he could not rise to greet them.

Because of his injured ankle, the president was unable to address the delegates in Continental hall earlier in the day as he had planned to do after his arrival from Beverly.

CIVIL SERVICE RULE IS CAUSE TAFT'S DISMISSAL

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—Federal civil service rules, it was announced today, were responsible for the dismissal of Harry D. Taft, a cousin of President Taft, from a minor clerkship in the United States customs office.

Harry D. Taft is 24 years old and February, 1911, he passed civil service examination. In January, 1912, he was given a temporary appointment as entry clerk in the customs office. At the expiration of the temporary appointment no permanent place could be found for him, the civil service rules provide that no temporary employee shall be given a permanent position after a lapse of more than a year since taking the examination.

BRITISH ASSN. OF SCIENCE OPENS SESSIONS SCOTLAND

DUNDEE, Scotland, Sept. 4.—The most interesting feature of the opening session today of the British Association for the Advancement of Science was the presidential address of Prof. E. A. Schaffer of Edinburgh university, which dealt with the science of life and maintenance of life.

In his address he said: "We may fairly conclude that all changes in living substance are brought about by ordinary chemical and physical forces."

Further on he said: "It has been played that we can no longer consider such an apparently vital phenomenon as the fertilization of the egg as being the result of living material brought to it, since it is possible to start the process of division of the cell in the egg and the resulting formation of cells and ultimately of all the tissues and organs in short to bring about the development of the whole body of a simple chemical reaction is substituted for the male element in the process of fertilization. We may even hope some day to see the material which composes the nucleus of cell life prepared by the combination of the proper substances."

He said that research seems to point to the conclusion that the possibility of the production of life—that is, of living material—is not so remote as has generally been assumed.

Despite the Gout, Taft Will Join Wife in N. Y.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—Although suffering from a sprained ankle and a slight attack of gout, President Taft tonight decided to go to New York tomorrow to join Mrs. Taft on the Mayflower.

The president remained in his apartment at the 225 Madison street only to welcome to Washington the delegates to the international congress of Applied Chemistry.

It was announced tonight that the president would leave for New York tomorrow morning. Owing to his injury, it is probable the plan to board the Mayflower in the North river will be changed, the president going to meet the yacht at the Brooklyn navy yards instead.

Major Rhoades, the president's aide, said tonight that Mr. Taft's injury was not serious, and that a week's rest at Beverly would put him on his feet again.

PROPOSE TO ASSESS P. O. EMPLOYEES AS PROTECTION

SALT LAKE CITY, Sept. 4.—Arriving that it is not good business to spend $150,000 to pay $50,000, the Postoffice of Postoffice clerks today favored a plan to protect the government against dishonesty similar to the bank guarantee law of Oklahoma. The resolution stated that the number of postal employees costs $150,000 and the annual loss about $50,000. It is proposed to make the losses good by assessing employees.

WILLIAM C. ROBINSON

Progressive Republican Candidate For State Senator, Third Senatorial District

A candidate for office wants votes, however much he may dislike to personally ask for them. It would be folly to deny that fact. Instead of taking your time for personal solicitation, I am making my request through the newspaper and through public addresses. I hope each Republican voter will take that to be just as personal as though I talked to him or her in person.

Some confusion may occur in marking the ballot for State Senator because both candidates have the same surname. Near the middle of the Republican official ballot at the primary election on September 10, you will find something like this:

FOR STATE SENATOR

ONE

If you believe in me, in the principles of government which I advocate, or in taking the management of the Republican party out of the hands of the Denver men who now control it, please express your belief by putting an X opposite my name in the above form on the ballot. That part of your ballot will then appear like this:

FOR STATE SENATOR

ONE

My opponent is the "assembly" or "convention" designee or nominee and the present direct primary law requires that his name should come first on the ballot. This explanation is made only for the purpose of avoiding errors through the similarity of names.

Hot Water When You Want It

VERY self-respecting man and woman likes to keep clean, and glories in the luxury of a good bath. Perhaps it is cleanliness that makes us self-respecting, or perhaps it is the other way around, but we all want everything that will add to the convenience and comfort of the bath room.

Possibly you do not know that it is possible to have an unlimited supply of hot water hot water whenever you want it, winter or summer hot as long as you want it hot as long as it runs.

Unless you have seen or heard about the wonderful RUUD AUTOMATIC GAS WATER HEATER this may sound like a pretty big claim, but, like all ingenious devices, it is extremely simple.

The RUUD is in the cellar out of sight and out of mind. The moment any hot water faucet is turned on anywhere in the house, the gas is automatically lighted in the RUUD and the water is heated as it flows through the hot copper coils. When the faucet is closed the gas is automatically turned off.

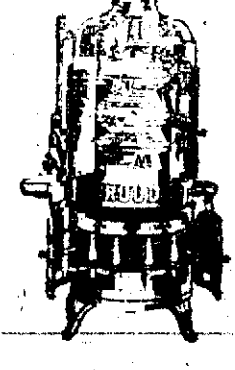

There is a RUUD in actual operation at our salesrooms. It will interest you to come in and see it work.

How the RUUD Operates

When you turn a hot water faucet, the water pressure operates a valve which turns on the gas in the burner. All the water reaching the faucet, must flow through turn over turn of copper coil, which is directly over the flame of the burners.

Now comes the most wonderful part—if the water should become too hot, a temperature regulator, operated by the expansion of a copper rod, automatically reduces the flow of the gas. When it starts to cool, the temperature regulator turns on the gas again. This continues until the hot water faucet is closed, when the gas goes out, and the RUUD ceases to work.

No more water is heated than is actually used—no more gas is burned than enough to keep the water at a fixed temperature, and it is all done without even a thought on your part.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 5, 1912.

A FEATURE OF THE CAMPAIGN

ONE of the strongest features of the Progressive Republican campaign made by Philip B. Stewart, Merle D. Vincent, Benjamin Griffith, Clarence P. Dodge, and others has been the absolute frankness of the candidates.

On May 19 Mr. Stewart came out with a platform which made his stand manifestly plain to the people; since that time, to use his own expression, the campaign of the Progressive Republicans has been "as frank and open as broad daylight."

Following the political tragedy in Chicago in June, Mr. Stewart returned with the statement, "I cannot condone the action of the Chicago convention." His every utterance since that time has followed the same line of thought. He has made his lines of cleavage plain and distinct. When he began the whirlwind campaign through the Arkansas Valley, and other parts of the state he did not hesitate to tell the people just where he stood and what he stood for.

His opponents, the assembly candidates for state office, have endeavored by every possible subterfuge known to political parties to prevent the people from knowing just where these candidates stand and what they stand for. Mr. Stewart saw this, and following the meeting in Denver at which these gentlemen resolved that they would make a gum shoe campaign, he propounded a series of seven questions to his opponent for the governorship.

The most important of these questions remains unanswered. This is the one which involved Mr. Parks' relationship with A. M. Stevenson, Tom Devine, and other manipulators of machine politics in Colorado. Mr. Stewart came out openly with the statement that he did not believe these gentlemen to be politically fit to manage the affairs of the Republicans of the state. He asked Mr. Parks what he thought about it. Mr. Parks made no reply.

The people of Colorado have determined what character of Republican they desire to have in charge of the affairs of the state for them. On Tuesday next this expression will undoubtedly prove that Progressive Republicanism with its "broad daylight" frankness is preferable to the "gum shoe" Republicanism of the assembly candidates.

THE SUPREME TEST

It seems hardly necessary, after all that has been said and printed regarding the approaching primary election, to call attention of voters again to the supreme importance of the primary, but as there are many still who have not fully grasped the significance of it, we risk repetition.

The direct primary has in other states been tested and proved as the most effective weapon against corrupt machine politics. Where it has been adopted the people have succeeded in regaining the control of their government which they had permitted to fall into the hands of powerful corporations and special interests which have used both parties to the furtherance of their own private ends and the detriment of the people.

In no state have conditions been more disgraceful than in Colorado. In no state have the people suffered or endured more. Now, through the adoption of a direct primary law, they have at their command the means of redress, reform and reconstruction. If they take advantage of it, they can overthrow the bosses, smash the pernicious machine and wrest control from the corporations.

If they fail to take advantage of it they will have nobody to blame but themselves for the continuance of political rotteness and they will have no right to complain.

The primary election Tuesday is the supreme test. Every device known to machine politics is being employed to win that election and maintain the system which prevents the people from exercising their constitutional right of self-government.

Tuesday the machine makes its last stand, and from the start about of the primary the welfare is more important than the people triumph at the primary election than that this or that party wins the November election.

THE SENATORIAL ISSUE

REMEMBER, the Progressive Republican candidates for representatives to the general assembly are the only ones who have definitely said that they will all vote for the people's choice for United States senators. The assembly will vote for Guggenheim, perhaps, or a Democrat, if they so desire. If you want the men who receive the largest number of popular votes for United States senator in the November election to represent Colorado in the upper house of congress, vote for legislators who will cast their ballots in the legislature only for the people's choice for the United States senate. The Progressive Republican candidates are Curt P. Goerke, Warren M. Persons and Thomas E. Thomas.

OPEN PARLIAMENT

WEEDS.
 To the Editor of The Gazette:
 When to give my hearty endorsement to an article headed "Weeds" in Tuesday's issue signed "E. L. A. D. I. C." It is high time that measures were taken to suppress this nuisance, which is a menace to the community and a most unsightly condition. The campus particularly is a disgrace to any well ordered city, especially a university town, and residents living opposite to it while being forced to improve and keep up their own property at a great expense, are obliged to look upon a condition across the street which is simply unbearable. The corner of Cascade avenue and San Rafael street is another example and many other spots could be cited which should come under the recent city ordinance which, however, appears to be enforced only in the paper. That so little pride should be taken in the keeping up of a city so widely known for its beauty, attractive scenery, etc., is difficult to understand, but as it is certainly the case, there is no use in making them. We might as well take example of our sister city Denver which is for and away ahead of us in public spirit and pride in its immediate surroundings.

RESPONSIBILITY AND LAW.

To the Editor of The Gazette:
 Under the above caption a contributor to your Open Parliament of September 2 takes issue with some one who, he says, gave utterance to these words: "I don't believe there is a God; if there is, he is responsible for all the evil in the world." He says: "The evidence of the existence of a supreme being is all about us, and needs no affirmative argument." And yet it is a well-established fact that God, as well as the soul and immortality, is unknown to science, and his existence can neither be demonstrated nor denied. This simply means that God, as a power above and apart from nature, her laws and the universe, is an "unknown quantity."

It is both natural and reasonable to believe in the existence of some supreme power governing the universe. The idea that everything came by chance, and operates by "haphazard luck," is not entertained, I think, by sound-minded, educated people. But the idea that God and nature are one and the same, is, in a most rational way, and certainly, relieving the great evil of the world. Humboldt, the naturalist, long ago demonstrated that "the laws of nature are sufficient for all the phenomena of nature," which effectively does away with the "special manifestations of providence" and the necessity for or possibility of miracles. The laws of nature are "irrevocable, inviolable, absolute." So it is virtually impossible for man to violate "the laws of God."

Where "Liberal" gets his conception of God, his power and attributes, I do not know. Probably it is a modification of the "Jehovah of the Jews," or, more likely, a creation of his own. After admitting that everything in the universe is governed by "fixed and unchangeable law," he says the loss of the Titanic was not God's fault, but the operation of the law of "cause and effect." Very good. But, then, these words: "A railway disaster, which kills and maims innocent people, is not God's fault, but man's violation of the same law of cause and effect." If the law of "cause and effect" is "fixed and unchangeable" how can any power, much less that of man, violate it? Evidently the writer, in his zeal to give the "free thinker" and the railroads a slap at one and the same time, has got his propositions badly mixed.

No one can do "good work." He does not need our help. But we can help humanity. And if the time, the energy, the zeal and the wealth that has been expended by man in his blind and bigoted efforts to "serve God" had been expended in the service of mankind, much crime and misery might have been spared, and this great world would not now be only upon the threshold of real civilization and enlightenment.
 H. HEILIG.
 Colorado Springs, Sept. 3.

"KEEP OFF THE GRASS."

To the Editor of The Gazette:
 In answer to Mr. O. Quillin's article, "Keep Off the Grass," published in the Open Parliament, I wish to say this:

I have been employed on the South park or court house lawn during the summer for the past four years. During that time I have never heard the man in charge of the lawn order anyone "to move on." When he has asked people to get off the grass he has always done so in a gentlemanly manner, and never has commanded any person "to move on." Perhaps Mr. Quillin is a trifle deaf?

Also, Mr. Quillin may be slightly blind; for there are signs, "Keep Off the Grass, to Fine," in a conspicuous place on every section of the court house lawn. No doubt, he did not see these signs.

Also, there is always shade in the bandstand and seats for any who cannot find shady seats on the walks.

STANDPATISM'S FAILURE.

From the Kansas City Star.
 In his eternal effort to block progress the standpatism of all ages has appealed to the law. The constitution or to whatever form custom has taken. Custom always has been his god and change his devil. Consider, for instance, the history of Rome in the last century before Christ.

People had crowded from the farms into the cities. Slaves were divided into large estates which were worked with slave labor. The government was controlled by the senate, which then was in all times dominated by a privileged class. Conditions were such that it was a question whether civilization which was bound up in the Roman state, would survive.

Certain legislative changes were imperative. But the senate was hopelessly standpat. The most recent historian of Rome, W. Warde Fowler, says that the governing body had become the mouthpiece of one class in society. So it had the vice of class rule—"the dislike of any kind of change, the narrow view of social life, the want of sympathy with other classes and of the desire to understand their needs."

Against the deadly standpatism of his century, Tiberius Gracchus began his warfare. He introduced and carried a bill providing for restoring settlers to government lands throughout Italy. The Penroses and Guggenheims of the day could not prevent the passing of the bill, but they controlled the officer who had the veto power—the tribune of the people. Gracchus carried a bill depositing the tribune. But his own terms as tribune lasted only a year. Contrary to precedent he ran for reelection.

At this time it is easy to understand what a "dangerous man" the interests of that day considered the progressive leader, and how they argued that the constitution would be subverted and freedom would be given if he should be given a second term.

In earlier times, however, the interests were not hampered by excess of scruples. They had Gracchus assassinated, thus ending the discussion. Now the privilege seekers try to assassinate characters—as in the case of the suit against Mr. Funk, the foe of Lorimer—but they do not venture further.

Nine years later a younger brother, Caius Gracchus, took up the work. Mr. Fowler says of him that "he was in reality one of those rare men like Luther later on, who profoundly believe they can do the work needed by the state better than any other man, and who are justified in that belief."

If he had been successful Rome might have escaped the era of danger and degeneracy that followed. But that was not to be. Effectual reform was blocked, Mr. Fowler points out, by "the forms of the old constitution, out of date many of them, and by the narrow spirit of the oligarchical faction (the special interests) opposed, for self-regarding reasons, to all change." He did much valuable work, beginning "by a noble effort so to amend the constitution that a reformer might be able to pass his laws without breaking it." But in the third year that he was in office he was murdered.

The result was that the government drifted on, becoming increasingly inefficient, until it seemed likely that Roman civilization would be submerged. The special interests, as Mr. Fowler says, "clung to the worn-out machinery of the constitution, to the checks, the vetoes, the short tenure of office." They insisted that they were standing for liberty, but in reality it was "the liberty to misgovern the empire."

Finally came Julius Caesar, who owed his power to the fact that orderly reforms had failed because of the stupidity of standpatism. In other words, popular government lost its hold in Rome because it fell into the hands of the privilege seekers, who resisted attempts at reasonable change to adapt the government to the needs of changed conditions.

The history of Rome is a conspicuous instance of the consequences of the failure of orderly reform. Under modern conditions, however, the failure of orderly reform would not mean a revolution in government. It would mean a revolution in property rights.

The Tie That Binds

By RUTH CAMERON.

If your only hold on something you loved, very, very much were a slender chain, and if you were afraid the chain was getting too weak to hold, and if you knew that you would lose this precious thing altogether if the chain broke, would you give the chain a tremendously hard yank to see if that would break it?

Or would you try to find some way of strengthening the chain?

That sounds as if the answer were obvious, doesn't it? And yet, listen to this question from a letter friend:

"It seems to me that my husband does not care for me as much as he used to," she writes, "and that he is growing altogether too fond of a young woman whom we both know. My heart is breaking for I love my husband devotedly, and I do not know what to do. I can think I should tell him with paying too much attention to this woman and threaten to leave him if he doesn't promise not to have anything more to do with her."

In other words, do I think she should give the tie that binds this man to her a tremendously hard yank to see if it would break? No, Madam, I don't. For this reason: if you did that and the tie didn't break—as it probably wouldn't—your mind would be easier, but in all probability the tie would be weaker. For when the strongest tie is weakened by such treatment, and whether your husband cares for the girl or not, that is likely to irritate and estrange him.

There are two or three things which you can do, according to your strength. The best and hardest is to try to strengthen that tie in every way you know how, and then, if you still must, make some saner test of its strength.

But if the torture you are suffering is too keen for you to take such slow measures, the second best thing to do is to have a friendly talk with your husband. In all probability the torture chamber which you have built up for yourself has its foundation merely on a few thoughtless words or acts of your husband, and is constructed out of your own imaginations. Doubtless it is so unsubstantial that a few words from him will blow it to smithereens. And if you approach him in the right way and appeal to his tenderness, he will probably say those few words with eagerness and sincerity. But not if you threaten and antagonize him, and show yourself to him in all the ugliness of an attack of jealousy.

Sometimes, you know, an atmosphere of constant jealousy and suspicion will produce the very thing it fears.

By the way, if you want help in convincing yourself of the groundlessness of your suspicion, suppose you read the greatest thing that was ever written on this subject.

It may really help you to realize how foolish you probably are.

Seven Great Letter Writers

NO. 5—JONATHAN SWIFT

One of the most voluminous of English letter writers was Jonathan Swift, and his published correspondence covers a wider field and presents more interesting subjects than are to be found in the letters of any other literary man who has placed so much of his best thought upon paper addressed to his friends.

The correspondence of Dean Swift covers a period of 50 years of political strife and literary activity in England, and a study of it is indispensable for anyone who seeks to understand the intrigues of political parties during the first quarter of the eighteenth century. In his letters we see statesmen and poets and philosophers at home, as it were, and we are admitted to a view of their habits of life and thought and speech not easily to be gained elsewhere.

For this reason, as well as for their literary excellence, the letters have always been read with curiosity and profit.

It would be difficult to make a selection of what could be taken as Swift's most interesting correspondence. Especially charming are the letters he wrote to Dr. John Arbuthnot. Of Arbuthnot's friendship and esteem any man might have been proud, and it is noteworthy testimony to Swift's integrity and high-mindedness that he enjoyed the confidence of this kindly good man to the end.

Perhaps the most remarkable feature in Swift's letters, apart from that extraordinary instinct for using the right word on the right occasion, is his adaptation of style to the occasion. His letters to Archbishop King on matters of ecclesiastical policy are dignified; those to Bolingbroke catch a little of the pedantry of that self-sufficient person; those to Pope are elegant and polished; those to Arbuthnot reflect the charm of Arbuthnot's character; while those to his adoring lady friends never lack a hint of that superiority which he always felt, or affected, in the presence of women. Said it is that his letters to Sheridan in like fashion fall in with the low humor which was congenial to his friend.

"My solitary way of life is apt to make me talkative on paper," he wrote, late in life; and his conversation, whether oral or written, took its form and color from the habits and tastes of his associates for the time being.

When Swift was writing these letters, it is generally supposed that he entertained no idea that they would be published. "I believe my letters have escaped being published," he told Pope, "because I wrote nothing but nature and friendship, and particular incidents which could make no figure in writing."

There is no reason to doubt the sincerity of this avowal; but it does not mean that Swift wrote hastily or without care. The famous "Journal to Stella" stands by itself. It is the most private of private documents, which perhaps never ought to have been given to the world, although one cannot be sorry that it was preserved. Yet even in the "Journal" Swift chooses his phrases and turns his sentences like the consummate master of English that he was.

It may be said that felicity of phrase and facility of composition are the badge of all great writing and that Swift wrote with a kind of unstudied instinct born of sheer genius.

A tale of which Swift loved to dream in his letters to friends was many. He never forgot his days of poverty, and money had a large share in his thoughts. His jests with Sheridan are often about money and the way to spend it, and he is almost reconciled to living in Ireland by the thought of money.

"To live in Ireland half as tolerably as I do here would ruin me. I must have two servants and three horses, and dare drink nothing but wine." It is disappointing to find com-

THE HASKIN LETTER

CHEMISTS OF THE WORLD

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

The eighth Congress of the International Association of Applied Chemistry, for the first time in the history of the organization meets this year in the New World, its initial sessions now being held in Washington.

While the ancient alchemist never found the fabled method of transmuting the base metals into gold, the modern chemist has found a thousand methods whereby rocks may be turned into bread, air into fertilizer, iron into liquid, and other things that have enriched humanity many fold more than the discovery of transmutation could have done. He has delved into the mysteries of the millions of worlds of the universe, and has found there materials that the mineralogist had never found though it existed before his own doorstep. He has been able to do in his laboratory in a day what required millions of years in Nature's workshop. With the knowledge he has gained and applied he has affected directly or indirectly the life of every man, woman, and child in the world.

Chemistry Underlies All.
 The chemist has revealed 10,000 mysteries of nature, learned the lesson that each has afforded, and then has applied those lessons to humanity. His science underlies every other science in the category. Whether a man is a physician, a newspaper man, a farmer, an astronomer, an electrician, or what not, back to the chemist he traces many of the fundamental features of his work. Without a knowledge of chemistry medicines could not be produced and compounded. The manufacture of this paratively few references in Swift's letters to literature or literary criticism. His judgment on books would have been interesting, but there is much less of books than of men in his letters. However, all his letters have the true, genuine ring. They describe his manners of life; they show how the solitary chafed against exile without being able to summon up strength to quit it, and they enable us to trace his gradual decline, from attempted resignation to a bitterness which no philosopher could soothe.

Interest in Congress.
 The meeting of the congress in Washington and New York and its subsequent short and long swinks around the globe in the United States, promises to claim the attention of the whole country. A glance at the program of the congress shows that there will not be a subject under the sun with which they will not have a more or less direct interest during the sessions of the congress.

Pure food can be known as such only by chemical analysis, as a rule, and the congress is laboring in the direction of the adoption of a uniform method of food analysis to be used the world over. Some of the methods of analyzing foods are so simple that a housewife may use them and other processes are so involved that only the laboratory expert can carry them out. The adoption of standard methods of food analysis for the whole world will make the manufacturer in one country know just what is necessary as a standard for his product to make it stand the analysis of all other countries.

Will Study Explosives.
 Another problem which the congress will attack is that of obtaining a world-standard of tests for the stability of explosives. In these days when world-trade-intercourse is so large and distances are so small, there is a large international trade in explosives. Unless there is substantial harmony in statement as to the degree of heat, the amount of concussion, etc., which is required to produce an explosion, accidents are certain to happen. The chemists desire these things to be expressed in a language that is understood by every person, of whatever country, who handles explosives.

In the study of explosives, the congress will consider their composition, methods and processes of manufacture, their properties and uses and methods of testing them. Borrowing a page from the dynamite outrage of the McNamara and his associates, the congress will study the outrages that have occurred throughout the world, and will try to propose means for the suppression of such troubles.

The congress will devote considerable attention to metallurgy and mining, discussing furnace practice, smelting, and dozens of related subjects. Perhaps three-fourths of the world's gold and silver supply comes from sources that could not have been profitably worked but for the improved and cheaper method of extracting the precious metals.

Will Talk About Perfumes.
 Perfumes, flavoring extracts, cleaning fluids, leathers and leathers will come in for their share of attention. Some of the finest perfumes in the world are made from some of the rarest odors in existence, and when the perfume manufacturers get through talking about the modern processes there will be room for many a human interest story from the perfumery factories.

Supar is a subject of deep interest to the chemist, and one subsection of

COLORADO DAIRY CATTLE

ARE NOT UP TO STANDARD

That Colorado is wasting its opportunities by not raising the standard of its dairy cattle was the general trend of a number of addresses at the El Paso-Boulder County branch of the Association of Milk Testers picnic, given on the grounds at the Montclair-Woodmen sanatorium yesterday. To the 30 or more farmers and dairymen who were present, Dr. W. K. Work, W. D. Working, Dr. W. K. Work, superintendent of the farm, manager of the department of the department of agriculture, W. A. Barr, United States junior dairyman, R. J. Mann, of Wisconsin, and State Dairyman Cochran, declared that today the state is shipping in thousands of dollars worth of its dairy products, when, because of its natural advantages, it should be sending out as large an amount instead. To more clearly bring out their point, Dr. J. A. Rinder, superintendent of the sanatorium, himself arranged for the cutting of corn and storing it in a silo to demonstrate the most practical methods. Special attention was called to the efficiency of the silo. After the meeting, at which Charles E. Waldron, treasurer of the milk testing association presided, everyone enjoyed an old-fashioned basket picnic.

According to a telegram received by Mrs. M. F. Madeira, 6 Cheyenne road, an old romance reached its climax Monday afternoon, when her daughter, Mrs. Jean Madeira Ady, divorced wife of R. C. Ady, married Weston Reginald Brooks, both of this city, at Santa Fe, N. M.

PLANS APPROVED FOR NEW BRIDGE ON SOUTH NEVADA

At a meeting between officials of the Rio Grande railroad, Commissioner of Public Works Lawton and L. E. Curtis, held in Denver Tuesday afternoon, plans for a new trestle to be constructed at the undercrossing on South Nevada avenue were discussed. J. W. Gwyn, construction engineer of the road, is said to be in favor of a new trestle. It is planned in the new bridge to eliminate the curve which now mars the appearance of Nevada avenue and which is a constant source of danger. There will be ample room for sidewalks on either side of the road. There will be two spans each 21 feet wide. The plans were drawn by City Engineer Mallon and were approved by the railroad officials.

TO REPAIR RESERVOIR

Further repairs are needed on the dam at Reservoir No. 4, according to Water Superintendent McReynolds, who recently made a trip over the system with a committee from the Chamber of Commerce. McReynolds' report shows that the city has plenty of water. Nearly 2,000,000 gallons are stored in the reservoirs and 410,000,000 gallons are available for irrigation purposes in the Prospect lake and Pike View reservoirs.

JURORS DENY CHARGES

OF ALLEGED BRIBERY

The case of Briggs against the Stratton estate, in which serious charges are made in regard to alleged tampering with jurors in the case of Meredith against the Stratton estate, was on trial when the district court adjourned yesterday. It will be continued today. In July, 1911, Briggs, administrator of the estate of Meredith, brought suit against the Stratton estate in the district court here. The jury found in favor of the defendant. Briggs immediately filed a motion for a new trial, which was overruled by Judge Owen. Later, he made application for a new hearing on the motion for a new trial, alleging that improper influences had been exerted on the jurors.

REV. WM. H. M'GLAULFIN

LEAVING ON HONEYMOON

The Rev. William H. McGlauffin, general superintendent of the Universalist churches in America, and who will be married today in Atlantic City, Mass., to Miss Gertrude Coe, a resident of that place, Miss Coe is a contralto soloist of note, and is a member of the Westland quartet, a musical organization well known in the New England states.

Dr. McGlauffin and his bride will leave Chicago September 11, and will start on a long tour of inspection of the various Universalist churches, which will embrace several states. The couple will arrive here two days later, and September 22 Dr. McGlauffin will preach the morning and evening sermon at the Universalist services in Odd Fellows temple. He and his wife will remain in this city about a week. Leaving here, they will go to Seattle, and visit points in the northwest. They will return to California by boat, and, after, trip through the south, they will return to New York about October 20.

GLEN EYRIE GROUNDS ARE CLOSED TO AUTOS

George A. Krause, resident executor of the Farmer estate, said yesterday that hereafter automobiles will be barred from all the grounds in and about Glen Eyrie. The grounds will remain open to carriages and people on horseback as heretofore.

A general disregard of rules brought about yesterday's action. About a year ago it was decided to permit automobiles to drive through the grounds at Glen Eyrie and this summer hundreds of machines have made the trip every week.

Automobiles will be barred in future, said Mr. Krause, "because of the utter disregard of rules as to speed, the protection of flowers and shrubs and in the matter of stencils on the grounds. We have had a great many complaints, not only from the tenants, their guests and employees, but from outside parties, about the recklessness of auto drivers as to speed. On more than one occasion Mr. Graef, the tenant, was forced to drive his machine into the bushes to avoid collisions with other autos running at reckless speed. An employee of the estate was thrown from his motorcycle on three occasions in avoiding collisions with autos running at a high rate of speed.

"Automobiles running at a speed of 30 miles an hour stir up a great deal of dust, and the inconvenience from this source has been unbearable when it is taken into consideration that Mr. Graef is here for the health of his young daughter. I regret that I am compelled to make this ruling, but the public and visiting motorists are to blame."

U. S. DISTRICT COURT DECIDES OLD CASE

The United States district court in Denver has decided that the removal of ore is not sufficient cause for tax reduction. The decision was made in a case against the Stratton Independence company. The action was a test case and the ruling will affect a great many mining men in Colorado. The decision was rendered by Judge William H. Pope of New Mexico, sitting for Judge Robert E. Lewis.

REPUBLICAN CLUBS WILL MEET TONIGHT
There will be a meeting under the auspices of the various Republican clubs of the city in the court house tonight. All Republican candidates are invited to attend.

Simeon J. Dunbar

Republican Candidate for the General Assembly.

One of the best-known and best-equipped candidates for the general assembly is Simeon J. Dunbar of Colorado Springs.

Mr. Dunbar has resided in this city for 30 years and has always taken a deep interest in public matters.

This is evidenced by the fact that he was elected for four terms as a member of the board of aldermen, during which he was chairman of the finance or water committee when many important public works were constructed. He has always taken an intelligent and broad view of public questions and has acted wisely, independently and honestly.

An editorial in the Colorado Springs Gazette during his aldermanic term has the following to say:

"Mr. Dunbar is a useful public servant, whose integrity and ability and experience in public affairs, as well as his natural aptitude for them, and his deep study of municipal affairs, are conceded on all hands."

His fellow citizens, in asking him to again become a candidate for reelection for a fourth term said of him: "His record as a city official is that of ability and faithfulness, in wise and economic management of the city's business in the interest of the citizens and the taxpayers."

It is precisely the same sort of ability that is required at the hands of members of the general assembly, and the citizens of this city and county will do well if they vote to send Mr. Dunbar to the legislature and thus secure the services of an honest, competent and trustworthy public servant.

LOCAL TRUST COMPANY TO RECEIVE CAMPAIGN FUNDS

EASTERN BANKERS HERE

A special train brought in 35 members of the American Bankers association at 8 o'clock last night. The bankers are on a tour to Yellowstone park and through the Colorado Rockies, and will remain here two days. The trip, which is in charge of the association, ends September 14. W. P. Liffey, of the New York Central railroad, is acting as conductor.

Valuable Discovery in Complexion Beautifier

(From the Home Maker)
Because of its powerful power of absorption, also because it serves every excellent purpose, ordinary mercurized wax is perhaps the most valuable complexion beautifier discovered within recent years. If one uses this she needs no other cream. Some use powder afterward, but this is not necessary and is inadvisable particularly when one perspires freely. This rule for applying mercurized wax has been found very satisfactory. Wash the face with warm water, drying lightly. Before thoroughly dry, anoint face and neck with the wax, but don't rub it in. The favorite way is to use before retiring, allowing it to remain on all night and washing it off in the morning with warm water. All druggists have this wax in original one-ounce packages.

For the removal of a wrinkled or flabby condition there's nothing better than to bathe the face in a solution made by dissolving 1 ounce powdered saxoline in 1/2 pint witch hazel. Beneficial results are quickly noticeable.

Biggest Bout Ever Here to Go to Finish Tonight

A record crowd is expected at Temple theater tonight when time is called for Yusuff Hussane, the Terrible Turk, and Dan McBride, Canadian champion. There is no time limit set for the match, and the wrestlers will keep at it until one or the other is declared a winner. Both of the big fellows are in splendid condition and each is confident of winning.

For several years McBride has had a reputation as a grappler far above the average, and he has successfully defended his title, champion of Canada, against the best of them, and judging from reports of his work in other cities, he must be an excellent matman. In Montreal, Canada, the fans think more of McBride than they do of Gail, and, after his meeting with the champion, he was doped as the coming title holder.

It was just an accident that Hussane and McBride are to wrestle here tonight, instead of in some of the larger eastern cities, where both are better known. The Turk was wrestling in Salt Lake City a few weeks ago, and his manager, "Chicago" Sandow, came to Colorado Springs for a few days before starting east. Hussane met Tommy Ryan and Frank Mirise in a handicap match, and offered flattering inducements for anyone else to go on the mat with him, but without success. Ryan, who is promoting tonight's bout, heard of McBride's trip east a few days ago, wired him to Seattle, and arranged for the Canadian champion to stop off here en route and meet the Terrible Turk. Judging from the reputations of both men, Colorado fans will see the greatest wrestling match ever staged in this part of the country.

"It is surely up to me to beat this big Turk," said McBride last night. "If I win it will mean anything I want in the wrestling game hereafter. If I lose, I might just as well go into some other line. I am in good shape for the bout, and expect to win. Hussane stands between me and Gail."

KILBANE OUTPOINTS DUNDIE IN 10 ROUNDS

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—Johnny Kilbane of Cleveland, holder of the featherweight title, easily outpointed Johnny Dundee in a 10-round bout here tonight. Dundee rushed from the start but was met unvaryingly with left jabs to the face that rendered his efforts futile. The coolness of the Cleveland boy disconcerted Dundee, and he swung wildly at the elusive champion, who skillfully side-stepped his lunges. Kilbane varied his defensive tactics with occasional mixes in which showings of short arm blows bewildered Dundee. In a boy mixup in the seventh, Dundee landed a left hook to Kilbane's nose, which started the blood. At no time did Dundee have any advantage while Kilbane apparently did not overextend himself, easily outpointing his opponent in every round. Abe Attell challenged the winner.

MUD DELAYS $10,000 TROT AT HARTFORD

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 4.—Grand circuit racing at the Connecticut State fair began this afternoon at Charter Oak park. The track was so bad in spots today that the $10,000 trot, the classic event of the meet, was put over until Thursday. Two events were carried through this afternoon, the 2:10 pace which was won in straight heats by Knight Onward and the free-for-all pace, which developed into an interesting contest between The Bel and Sir R. The latter finally winning. In 2:10 pace, Knight Onward had things his own way. Mansfield dashed the fleet footed stallion in all three heats and in none was beaten by more than a neck. Denver Jay had third place easily.

REAGAN BEATS JOHNS

SALT LAKE CITY, Sept. 4.—Jimmy Reagan of San Francisco, defeated Alf Johnson of Butte, in 10 rounds of fast fighting here tonight. Reagan and Johns all but out when his seconds threw up the sponge.

Championship Wrestling Match

at Temple theater tonight at 8:30 o'clock. Yusuff Hussane, the only original Terrible Turk, vs. Dan McBride, champion of Canada. Two good preliminaries. Admission, 50c, 75c, $1. Ringside, $1.50. Ladies accompanied with one paid admission admitted free. If a good seat is desired, secure it in advance at Powell & Doner Sporting Goods store.

In fact, he is the only man, in my opinion, who stands between us today. If I beat him I don't think the champion can refuse to give me a title match."

Yusuff Hussane had the following to say regarding his meeting with McBride:

"I have been doing some hard work for McBride, for I know he is a good man, and will be hard to beat. I will go after him from the start, just as I have done against all the other wrestlers I have defeated. If he beats me, well—we will wait and see."

Several short bouts will precede the main event between Hussane and McBride, the latter match starting at 8:15 o'clock. The doors at Temple theater will be open at 7 o'clock, and during the day tickets will be on sale at the Powell-Doner Sport Goods store.

BRITISH BOAT WINS HARMSWORTH TROPHY

HUNTINGTON, N. Y., Sept. 4.—The Royal Motor Yacht club of England today lifted the Harmsworth trophy. In the most spectacular race since the Americans brought the trophy across the Atlantic, five years ago, the British-built hydroplane Maple Leaf IV won the deciding race of the series on Huntington bay this afternoon.

She covered the 30-mile course in 47 minutes, 18 seconds, defeating the only American entry then running, Bay Relevance III, by one minute and five seconds. Another of the American defenders, the 32-foot Aukle Deep, had led the race by about half a mile for 25 miles, but when in sight of the goal, the propeller snapped off.

The Maple Leaf IV is of 100-horsepower. After she had raced around the course today more than a full minute faster than ever made before, the owner claimed the boat to be the "fastest in the world." Her speed was at the rate of 37.68 knots, or 43.33 statute miles an hour.

GAIL STRENGTHENING LINEUP FOR OMAHA

The Omahogs may come home tomorrow thinking they are to run up against a team from the thickest of the underbrush when they meet the Zooz, but they will be in line for the surprise of their lives if the plans of Manager Gail, P. L., carry through. With a team that is already one of the strongest in the Rocky Mountain region, Gail is still unsatisfied and is negotiating for a couple of crack players to strengthen his lineup yet more. When the Zooz pitcher warms up at 3 o'clock tomorrow the men from Omaha will be facing the most formidable team, with the exception probably of the Grizzlies, in all this region.

TRAINING TABLE FOR AGGIES

FORT COLLINS, Colo., Sept. 4.—A training table for the football squad at the Agricultural college was started today at noon and for the next three months the men who will join the squad will eat only such things as Coach Hughes designates. The coach has full charge of the training table, saying just what food shall be served, and S. H. Hymer will have charge of the buying. The training table was made possible for the first time here by subscriptions from local business men and Coach Hughes hopes by starting the men in early in the season to be able to build up a machine which will make a creditable showing on the gridiron this fall.

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—Detroit won a one-sided contest from Chicago, it being the final appearance of the Tigers here this season. The visitors knocked out Scott in the fourth inning, after making seven hits for a total of 6 runs. Manager Callahan tonight released Recruit First baseman McLarry, secured from Austin, Tex., to the Lincoln club of the Western league. Score: R.H.E. Chicago, 4; 11; 5. Detroit, 12; 13; 4. NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—New York hit Combs hard today, and won. Daniels caused excitement in the sixth, when he tripled with three on bases, Chase's being a wonderful stop by Barry, and a great catch by Lettvelt, were the features. Lettvelt robbed Baker of a homerun with two on bases, when he jumped into the air and pulled from the drive with one hand. Score: R.H.E. New York, 6; 11; 5. Philadelphia, 1; 1; 0. BOSTON, Sept. 4.—The Washington players came to town declaring it was still possible for them to win the pennant, but they lost to the league-leading Boston. Manager Griffith sent a relay of four young pitchers against Boston, but with poor results. Collins, for Boston, was in fine form, and received all-edges support. The locals clinched the game in the second inning, when they piled up four runs. Two passes, which Engle gave among four hits, assisted in the scoring. Gallia, who succeeded Engle, was also wild; Musser, who followed, was both wild and ineffective. Boston scoring two runs off him, and Herring, who finished, showed little class. Gandil knocked in both of the Washington runs with a triple and a single. Score: R.H.E. Boston, 6; 10; 1. Washington, 2; 6; 2. Herring and Ainsworth. Two-base hits—Gardner, Yerkes, Lewis. PITTSBURG 5; CHICAGO 2

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—Wilson's home run drive won today's game for Pittsburgh, and incidentally widened the margin between Chicago and New York to six full games in the pennant race. Chicago took a two-run lead in the sixth. Zimmerman singled and Leach walked. Sauer fanned and Evers singled out for hit for Wagner and Zimmerman scored. Needham then singled, hitting the bases. O'Toole made a wild pitch and Leach scored. O'Toole retired after this inning and Robinson held the locals safe. The visitors made one run on Miller's double, an infield hit which Zimmerman led off with, and the third base line, thinking it would roll off. On a double play Miller scored. After one out in the eighth, Carey singled, Dodin popped out and Wagner was purposely walked. Miller then singled and Carey scored.
